- The behavior of cats, like all animals, is sometimes unpredictable and can give rise to a wide range of behaviors, some of which may be aggressive, including, but not limited to, biting and scratching without warning or provocation.
- While some cats may be very affectionate, many of the cats at the Café may be of unknown and uncertain backgrounds. They may be or may have previously been homeless, stray, abandoned, abused, neglected and/or exhibit health and/or behavioral problems.
- All people encountering cats at the Café are required to treat them with respect, care, gentleness, watchfulness for signs of irritation or aggressing and to follow the Café's posted rules for interacting with the cats.
- While the Café strives to only have cats on site that have been provided with all reasonable veterinary care, the Café cannot guarantee the health, mental stability, parasite or vaccination status of any of the cats on its premises.
- Cats may cause serious harm to humans and other animals at the Café, and by entering the Café, I knowingly and willingly assume all of the risks discussed here and those related to interacting with cats, including but not limited to bites, scratches, infections, illness, allergies, and physical, emotional and financial damages, some or all of which may be severe.
